Absence Of Evidence: An Examination Of The Michelle Young Murder Case (True Crime)

Synopsis

Michelle Young was living the American dream. The former NC State cheerleader was married to Jason. They had a beautiful two year old daughter and a son on the way. The couple enjoyed a comfortable life in the quiet Enchanted Oaks community of Raleigh, North Carolina. It was autumnâ€”a time for football games and holiday plans, but on November 3, 2006 Michelle was found beaten to death in her home. It shook the community and quickly attracted national attention. Police immediately began investigating Jason . . . but he was out of town at the time of the murder. Would they discover enough evidence to solve the crime? Discover the facts about this fascinating and controversial case. Includes photos

Interesting way of presenting the story. It was nice for a change not having the narrative be the principals. I hope there is a follow-up to this that can punish the murderer.

This is a book that needs to be read because it points out the ways in which a innocent person can be prosecuted when there is no evidence. The prosecution just wants to clear the case and trumps up what small evidence they may have. The juries need to be careful about what they believe. and grand juries should weigh the evidence carefully.

Very interesting well written book. Lots of detailed information.read this in 2days, was hard to put down.

This case was national news,I remember reading about in a magazine,and it was on news shows.the first jury was 8 to 4 not guilty. The writer explained how I always felt it was two people. There were witnesses that saw a vehicle at the crime scene in the morning, plus the unidentified shoe sizes that didn't fit Jason. Most of the time our justice system gets it right,unfortunately not this case.

This is an outstanding examination of the Young case. The level of specificity and understanding of the law is of the highest quality. Blanchard appears to have written this book ONLY to attempt to document the problems with the case. Mr Young was fighting the law, legal system, the judge, the media, attacks by Allen Banner, his mother-in-law, the misguided jury...just to name a few. I sincerely hope Mr Young is exonerated as this is the only way to receive justice for Michelle and their unborn son.

Great read! Thanks!

Can't believe her dedication that is still waiting for justice. A troubling travail that cries out for real truth. Waiting for the final shoe to drop...

A different view of how today's judicial system works and not always to pointing at who is actually guilty but who they want guilty
